

NO BATTERIES PERMITTED BY ROAD AND FOR STORAGE

LITHIUM-ION BATTERIES

Please be advised we will not accept Li-ION batteries in household and personal effects shipments being transported by road on our vehicles under any circumstances. There is a widely reported increased fire risk associated with these batteries, and we are not willing to place our staff, vehicles or premises at risk to their health and wellbeing by transporting or storing any items containing Li-ION batteries. Furthermore, any insurance cover we put in place for the transport of your household goods would be null and void in the event of a fire incident where the cause is identified as being from a Li-ION battery source.

The British Association of Removers (BAR) recommends excluding Li-ION batteries along with other hazardous goods from all removal consignments. Including these items, whether by intent or in error, places our staff and equipment at unacceptable risk.

BY USING OUR SERVICES, YOU AGREE TO THE FOLLOWING

I understand that if the crew handling my consignment become aware of items that contain batteries, I run the risk of having your services withdrawn with no refund or any payment made for those services. In addition, in the event of a fire incident during the removal or storage process where the cause is subsequently identified as having been caused by a battery, I understand I will be personally liable for any loss or damage that occurs.
